PROVISIONAL SYLLABUS

Italian politics. International change and domestic transformation

PROF. ALESSANDRO QUARENghi

PROF. ELFEGA VIRIDIANA UJLOA BOBADILLA

Area of study:	International Relations
Area Code:	IR/PO325
Method of Instruction:	in-person
Participation:	synchronous

Description

Contemporary international processes have underlined Italy's role as a political border between the East (Russia and China) and the West (the United States and its Atlantic allies); between the North (Europe) and the South (the Middle East and North Africa); between developed and developing countries; between 'the decline of the West and the rise of the Rest'. How are contemporary international processes influencing Italian politics? How is Italy transforming because of international politics and adapting to international change?

Upon successful completion of the course, students will have a solid grasp of Italian political and social structures; they will be familiar with the most important issues in the contemporary Italian debate, and aware of processes of change in its political constituencies, parties and stakeholders, foreign policies, and identities. In addition, they will have knowledge on how contemporary international and intra-State political and social structures relate to and influence each other.

Course contents

The course is divided into two parts. The first part focuses on the construction of and change in Italian political and social structures in relation to the international system and its transformation; while the second part focuses on contemporary political, economic, and social issues that have shaped Italian politics. The analysis will compare Italian issues to Mexico's, which will highlight their specific features. In addition, the second part of the course will discuss identity, interests, and goals of contemporary Italian political parties, and Italy's relationships with the European Union, the United States, Russia, and Cina.

Prerequisites

The course is an introduction to the politics and international politics of Italy; therefore, it can be approached by students of all backgrounds. A background in political science, international politics, and/or comparative politics could be helpful but is not required.

Method of instruction

UNIVERSITÀ
CATTOLICA
del Sacro Cuore

The first part of the course will consist of lectures. In the second part of the course, and depending on the number of students, some issues will be introduced by a student presentation (15-20 minutes), which can be supported by the assigned readings. The issues raised by the presentation and by the readings will foster a discussion led by the instructors, which will constitute the bulk of the class. The instructors will then conclude by briefly (10-15 minutes) summarizing the most important points made during the discussion.

Course requirements

- a. Students are expected to regularly attend sessions and to actively take part in debate;
- b. Before each class, students are expected to have read the compulsory readings (and are strongly advised to read the recommended readings);
- c. Students are required to orally present one of the topics outlined in the syllabus according to the instructor's instructions;
- d. Students will have to take a final written exam.

Credits

6 ECTS

Grading

Group project (presentation)	1/3 of final grade
Final written exam	2/3 of final grade

Course readings and materials

All readings and materials can be downloaded from the dedicated course blackboard pages (<http://blackboard.unicatt.it>) or be accessed through links. Further instructions on the downloading procedure will be provided in class. Both readings and lectures/class activities are crucial components of the course and are interrelated.
