OUR

CAMPUSES

AND

CITIES

We have 5 campuses across 6 Italian cities.

Each campus offers a different academic setting, pace, and relationship with its surroundings.

Choosing a programme also means choosing an environment.

1 MILAN

Milan is where many of our English-taught programmes are based.

It is a working city. Fast, connected, and closely linked to business, finance, media, and international organisations.

2 BRESCIA

Brescia offers a more contained academic environment.

Classes are smaller, and the sense of community is often more immediate. It is a good fit for students who prefer a quieter setting while still having access to strong programmes in business and finance, STEM, psychology, and education.

3 PIACENZA

Piacenza is closely connected to Italy's food production and agricultural industries.

The campus is structured around programmes in economics, business, agribusiness, law, and sustainability, with strong links to industry and applied research.

The scale is smaller, and the environment is focused. Students here tend to value community, concentration, and continuity.

4 CREMONA

Cremona hosts specialised programmes in food production, agriculture, and sustainability.

Facilities include laboratories and research spaces directly linked to the local food ecosystem. The academic experience is strongly applied, with close interaction between study and production contexts.

5 ROMA

In Rome, our School of Medicine and Surgery is integrated with the Gemelli Hospital, Italy's leading hospital according to Newsweek World's Best Hospitals 2026.

This means that academic study and clinical practice are closely connected from early on.

Beyond the university, Rome offers a very different rhythm from Milan. Larger and deeply layered, it is a place where daily life and history coexist.

* BOLZANO

Bolzano hosts our second Medicine and Surgery programme, developed in collaboration with local healthcare institution Claudiana.

The setting is multilingual, smaller, and located in the Alpine region, it offers a structured and focused academic environment.

For medical students, this combination of scale, clinical exposure, and international context is a key element of the experience.
